Abstract

Due to an increasingly hectic life, workers and students have little time to cook, or buy groceries. These are contexts in which food represents something essential but not central. These people need a food service that offers quality food at affordable prices and with a quick and convenient service.

Our catering service responds to these needs avoiding the waste of good quality products from the agro-food chain: food close to expiry or remained unsold for aesthetic characteristics... This allows us to have raw materials at low cost and reduce food waste.

A first place of development can be a university pole like Ancona, with the possibility then to extend to regional and national level.
