If the call for application stipulates a maximum limit of publications presented, for candidates who have exceeded the maximum limit the examining Board will only evaluate the publications in the order indicated in the list up to the limit.

Following a decision taken by a majority of the board members, the candidates considered comparatively as most deserving, ranging from 10 to 20 percent of the total number of candidates and in any case no fewer than 6, are called to illustrate and discuss their qualifications and publications in a public interview with the board.
